Good Evening Sir – I filed several complaints against Col Steven Butow, 129 RQW/CC, Col Jeff Magram, 129 RQW/CV, Col Daniel Lapostole, 129 MXG/CC, Lt Col Roin Nance, 129 RQW/COS, Lt Col William Griffiths, 129 FSF/CC, and CMSgt Jason Red, 129 RQW/CCM in the past three years. In those complaints, I stated at various times that they were UNFIT to command, lead, or supervise, and they proved my point yesterday:

On Thursday, 9 May 2013, at about 1030, MSgt Jessica Brown, who is a MST survivor and suicidal, called Travis AFB to find out the status of her MEB. She has been waiting for her MEB to be processed for 18 months and is anxious for it to be approved because the toxic and hostile work environment at the 129 RQW is triggering her PTSD and causing her severe depressive state and suicide attempts. But when she called Travis, her worst nightmare came true. They told her that the 129 RQW purposely miscoded her to have only served 6 months as an AGR, and therefore, no MEB. This then triggered her PTSD and suicide attempt.

***Please remember that MSgt Brown has been an AGR for 12 years; there is no way on God's green earth that she can become a MSgt with only 6 months in the military; and please note that her doctors have repeatedly told her Chain of Command at the 129 RQW to stop contacting her and to stop harassing her.***

At about 1224, MSgt Brown texted me her suicide note. Please see attached. When I received it, I thought this was it this time because she had never written a note before but she took the next step. Frantically, I demonstrated her, I texted her to no avail, I called BDOC; 911; I called other officers, enlisted, and civilian personnel to find where she was at and to send someone to stop her because I was more than 50 miles away. I was scared to death; I was in tears, my chest was tight, I could not breathe, and I was lightheaded. I was worried sick to my stomach. But with the help of Lt Col James Henderson, after about an hour, we managed to get her to disclose her location and the police found her in time.

They found her trying to kill herself in her car. The policeman told me that we had called just in time because she was almost there. They found her overdosed on OTC and prescription drugs, and she self-mutilated herself. (Please see attached pictures) So in an odd sort of way, luckily, God/Karma/The Universe was with us yesterday and Jessica didn't die. She lives today. But the story gets even better:

While she lay in her hospital bed with her parents and friends at her side trying to make sense of the suicide resulting from the abuse she has suffered at the hands of her supervisor and commander, a private courier/process server breached hospital security and entered her room without her permission and without the hospital's permission or knowledge. This process server was sent by her chain of command: Col Steven Butow, Col Jeff Magram, Col Lapostole, Lt Col Roin Nance, CMSgt Jason Red, and Lt Col William Griffiths, to serve her AGR Tour Curtailment paperwork (Employment Termination Paperwork). He tried to leave the paperwork on the desk in MSgt Brown's ER room, but when the nurse challenged him, he then had the audacity to try to serve MSgt Brown's mother. Can you imagine what that did to MSgt Brown's mother? But what blows me away is that they did not have the guts to bring her the paperwork themselves! No Sir, they committed waste of government funds by unnecessarily sending a third-party because they are cowards. They are mice. They are not men. So Sir, my next question to you is: Can officers get any more despicable than Col Butow, et al? Can they behave in any lower manner as officers and SNCOs? They wanted MSgt Brown to sign for termination paperwork while she was under duress and heavily medicated. I don't think "common human decency" is a term any of them understand, yet they are our "leaders". Instead of fixing the root problem, to them, it was just easier to get rid of her. Is this the type of behavior you promote and tolerate in our National Guard? The last time I checked, we don't leave soldiers behind, but apparently, at the 129 RQW, we do. She has repeatedly told me that she does not want to leave the military because she's a good airman; and from what I remember; she was one of the best. She won NCO of the Year at the 129 RQW. You ought to be very suspicious as to how a top-notch SNCO goes from hero to zero in 18 months. She has repeatedly told me that she wants to stay in the military and only needs nothing but time to get well, but she can not because her chain of command constantly harasses her even when she is on convalescent leave; they require her to call in everyday despite her doctors' orders; and they purposely require her to go on base knowing that her attackers are still there to trigger her PTSD and force her to quit. So instead of being a "Wingman" (which by the way, the Wingman Program on base is a joke), the chain of
